A Note from the Editors:

Beginning in 1989, Mathematica Militaris has served as a forum for exchanging ideas, views, experiences, and faculty research concerning mathematics education at the five Federal Service Academies. We are excited to publish Volume 22 of the Journal in 2017, and we intend to publish the journal each year.

First in this issue, Ralph Boedigheimer, Michael Brilleslyper, Dale Peterson, and Bradley Warner summarize their sabbatical time spent addressing problems at the Headquarters of the Air Force Space Command Analysis Division, and the resulting academic benefits. This is followed by David Joyner's application of Massey ranking to Patriot League men's baseball which includes both Army and Navy. Lastly, Caroline Melles details the implications of Geoff Colvin's book Humans are Underrated to our way of teaching at the service academies.

We hope you enjoy this edition of Mathematica Militaris, and we look forward to receiving new submissions in the near future. Be sure to visit our website:
